

PHYSICAL EDUCATION IN VIRGINIA GAINS GROUND

Reports Show Satisfactory Progress, Especially in Rural Districts.

OLD EXERCISES THREE WEEK

Corresponding gain is made this year. Approximately four-fifths of pupils in state will have had physical inspection.

Physical education reports for the school year 1921-22, as compiled by C. Throner, State supervisor of physical education, and submitted to the Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Hart, show satisfactory progress, especially in rural schools. Mr. Hart announced yesterday.

An important phase of the physical education program is the physical inspection of school children by their teachers, the report shows. The total school enrollment for city and rural schools in 1921-22 was 524,856. Of this number, 331,867 physical inspections were made for malnutrition and for defects of eyes, hearing, teeth and nose. There were 65,000 more physical inspections of rural children than last year than in the previous year. A corresponding gain is made this year. Approximately four-fifths of the school children of rural areas will, during the current year, have had a physical inspection.

Three Exercises a Week. In 1921-22 physical exercises were conducted at least three times per week in 2,479 of the 6,357 rural schools and in 120 of the 230 city schools.

The State Department of Education made strenuous efforts to induce counties in employing physical directors, for supervisory purposes. Along the schools, the report states, at present there were county physical directors in Arlington and Norfolk. During the two years in which the present physical education program has been maintained in Virginia, only two counties, Arlington and Norfolk, where urban conditions are employed physical directors, the report states. This condition will be improved during the present session. Culpeper, Elizabeth City, Isle of Wight and Northampton Counties have employed physical directors, according to the reports.

Organize, Supervise and Direct. The duties of the county physical directors are to organize, supervise and direct a progressively graded physical training program for the schools and grades therein, as well as to cooperate with other health officers and workers. The director teaches a physical education lesson in the school room and leaves with the teacher who conducts this work daily until the director's next visit, when a new lesson is explained and taught. In the absence of school, the physical director also is expected to cooperate with, and to assist teachers in conducting physical exercises. In addition, the director supervises activities of the playground and organizes county school athletic leagues for graded and high schools in basketball, baseball and football. In after-school hours the director coaches the athletic teams, especially those of the larger high schools of the county, and assists with rural recreation in general.

This important health and physical education program is gaining ground in Virginia under the provision of a West Law. It is hoped that shortly a body will be provided for as amply in the mind in the education of the young generation. The experiences the world has revealed the imperative need of physical education. A report states Virginia, through its constituted agencies, is seeking meet this need.

Entertain Episcopal Men. Plans for the entertainment of men of the Episcopal Church in Barton Heights are being made in order that the Churchmen's Club and the Men's club class will be developed. A reception given by the rectory and vestry to the young people of the church will follow. About 100 women of the church attended the reception given at Parish Hall of Epiphany Church, Sunday night by the rector and vestry.

Sunday School Officers. H. S. Francis has been chosen superintendent of the Sunday School at Highland Park Christian Church. Other officers named were H. A. Atkins, assistant superintendent; W. H. Rankins, secretary; E. W. Lipscomb, treasurer, and Miss Mary Taylor, pianist.
